

Biography

May 2024

Daniel Rudolph

President of Henkel Australia and New Zealand

Effective January 2017, Daniel Rudolph was appointed President of Henkel Australia and New Zealand. In this role, Daniel legally represents the company and is the spokesperson for Henkel's operations in the region. Concurrently, Daniel is the Head of Adhesive Technologies for Australia and New Zealand, a position which he has held since January 2016. Daniel is based in Melbourne, Australia.

Prior to that, Daniel was President of Henkel Singapore and Head of Adhesive Technologies business unit for Transport, Aviation and Metals in Southeast Asia. Daniel started his career with Henkel more than 20 years ago in Australia, and has been instrumental in developing Henkel's adhesives business in Asia-Pacific with postings in Japan, China and Singapore, before returning to Australia.

In addition to his professional roles, Daniel is deeply committed to developing teams and driving a culture of innovation and sustainable growth.

Daniel holds a Master's degree in Engineering Mechatronics and Computer Science from the University of Melbourne, Australia.